Air force 1 shadow pink and green

The Shadow displays two eyestays, two mudguards, two back tabs as well as two Swooshes on each shoe to push the limits while staying true to the OG recognisable design at the root of it all. Next up, an exaggerated foam Air-Sole unit, as well as a grooved outsole, keep the shoe lightweight, flexible and as comfortable as it has always been. To add even more detail to the silhouette, the unique bridge between both the upper and midsole in a stand-out rubber tape design finishes the design with an even chunkier and playful aesthetic. Facebook Instagram Youtube Twitter Google+ Top If you're looking for a way to serve your country, the Air Force is a great option. To join, you must be an American citizen and meet other requirements, and once you're a member, you help protect the country via the air. Take a look at the steps for joining.Make Sure You Meet the StandardsBefore you take the steps to join the Air Force, it's important to make sure you meet the requirements. In addition to being an American citizen, and you must be between the ages of 17 and 27. However, if you are 17, you must have your parents' permission as well as a high school diploma. If you are applying to work in the Air Force as a doctor, nurse or other health professional, you may be able to surpass the age requirements, depending on the job you want.Take the ASVABIf you meet the requirements, you can sign up to take the Armed Forces Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB). This is a test ensures you have what it takes to meet the demands of the Air Force. It can also determine what your strengths will be once you're enlisted. It covers mathematics and reasoning, reading comprehension and work knowledge. If you pass, a recruiter may get in contact with you so you can take the next steps.Pass Physical and Mental ScreeningsYou'll then meet with a recruiter at a local Military Entrance Processing Station for your physical and mental screening. He or she has a list of standards set forth by the Air Force, the Department of Defense and federal laws that you must meet. You should be in good physical shape, so the Air Force advises starting an exercise program before you apply. You'll also need to know that you have the mental capacity to work in the environments you may travel to. Finally, your recruiter can help you identify the Air Force jobs you're most qualified for and the ones that interest you most.Go into the Delayed Entry ProgramOnce you are officially accepted into the Air Force, you'll go into the Delayed Entry Program. (DEP) This means you are officially a member of the U.S. military, but you are part of the inactive reserves. During this time, you may wait up to a year to be called for basic military training. The time may be used to ensure you meet security clearances, and many recruits use it to get themselves into better shape.Leave for Basic Military TrainingWhen DEP is over, you head for basic military training (BMT). This part of your training will challenge you mentally and physically, but once it's over, you'll officially be qualified to being your career serving in the United States Air Force. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET Most people have a general idea that the president's plane is a flying office with all sorts of high-tech equipment. But there are two essential facts about Air Force One that the general public isn't aware of. "Air Force One" isn't technically a plane: It's simply the radio call name for any U.S. Air Force plane carrying the president of the United States. As soon as the president steps aboard an Air Force plane, that plane is referred to as Air Force One by the crew and all air traffic controllers, in order to avoid confusion with any other planes in the area. If the president rides on an Army aircraft, that aircraft is Army One, and whenever he boards his specialized helicopter, that craft is Marine One. Civilians generally refer to the physical plane itself as Air Force One, of course, and we will in this article too.Today, there are actually two planes that regularly fly under this designation -- nearly identical Boeing 747-200B jets. The planes themselves are designated VC-25A, with tail numbers 28000 and 29000.The two planes have the same general structure as a normal Boeing 747-200B, and similar capabilities. They are almost as tall as a six story building, and they're as long as a city block. Each has four General Electric CF6-80C2B1 jet engines, which provide 56,700 pounds of thrust a piece. The top speed is between 630 and 700 miles per hour and the ceiling maximum (how high the plane can fly) is 45,100 feet. Each plane carries 53,611 gallons of fuel and weighs 833,000 pounds fully loaded for a long-range mission. With a full tank, the plane can fly half way around the world.Like a normal 747, these planes have three levels. But the inside, the plane doesn't resemble commercial 747s in the slightest. In the next section, we'll look at the major components that set the VC-25A planes apart from a normal jetliner. A future president will get a new Air Force One early in the next decade.With the current presidential jet nearing the end of its service life, Boeing is working on two state-of-the-art replacements -- a primary plane and a backup -- that will be ready for use in 2021 or so.The new modified 747-300 jets will feature more-energy-efficient jet engines than the 747-200s now in use. Today's Air Force One lost some distance capacity when top secret electronics gear was added after the 9/11 terrorist attacks. The four engines on the next generation of Air Force Ones will provide enough thrust to make up for the additional weight. The Air Force colonels who fly Air Force One pay a lot of attention to the total weight of the plane, constantly having to calculate how far it can fly in case of a sudden change in flight plans.Among other features: A mobile command center, a war room, a fully outfitted surgical operating room plus equipment for defending the aircraft in case of a missile attack. Also, a stealthier airplane outer skin that will make the planes more difficult to spot, and onboard electronics that can withstand an electromagnetic pulse.One thing the plane will not have: an escape pod like the one featured in the movie Air Force One, starring Harrison Ford. It's just not feasible.Each of the two new tricked-out Boeing 747-800s will cost the government substantially more than the $357-million sticker price on the commercial version -- and not just because of inflation between now and the first flight. The White House has already asked Congress to allocate $1.14 billion for research and development of the next-generation Air Force One.The current presidential jets, designed by President Ronald Reagan and first used by his successor, George H.W. Bush, will reach the end of their allotted 30-year life span in 2017. But they'll be kept in use until the replacements are ready.Boeing will remain the sole builder of Air Force One. The Chicago-based firm has been building presidential jets since its first Air Force One, a 707-320B, debuted in 1962 during the administration of President John F. Kennedy.This time around, the European aircraft consortium Airbus considered putting in a bid to convert its massive double-decker A380 jet into the next-generation Air Force One, but ultimately did not do so, making Boeing the sole bidder.The Air Force One contract may help keep an assembly line open at Boeing's Seattle-area plant, where the 747-800 is built. Contracts for commercial 747-800s and for the four-engine C-17 military aircraft, also built in Seattle, are way down, so the new Air Force One contract is likely to save hundreds of jobs.Boeing would have preferred to offer up as the next Air Force One its newer 787 Dreamliner model, which it plans to build in Seattle and South Carolina. But with that jet plagued with a series of glitches, from poor flow of oxygen to the cockpit to lithium-ion batteries catching on fire, the Secret Service expressed concerns about its reliability.
